

- The National Student Speech Language Hearing Association is a national student organization made up of both undergraduate and graduate students in the field of speech-language pathology and audiology.
- Our students treat individuals with communication disorders including articulation, language, disfluency, aphasia, apraxia, and dysarthria, among others.
- FAU's chapter provides students with in-field information, mentorship support, networking opportunities, team-building events, and ways to care for our local community.
