

FAU College of Education Embraces All Students

The College of Education at Florida Atlantic University re-affirms its values of diversity and inclusivity as we build an open community in which our students, staff and faculty thrive. We stand together as one in celebration of our differences, where we uphold dialogue towards understanding and reject hatred and intolerance. We re-commit to the role of educational institutions as safe spaces for the exploration of divergent ideas and recognize such opportunities as the foundation on which democracy, peace and human sustainability are built.

We value and support people of all racial and ethnic backgrounds.

We value and support immigrants of all nationalities and statuses.

We value and support members of all faith, spiritual and belief communities.

We value and support people within a spectrum of gender identities.

We value and support those who have experienced or fear violence of any kind.

We value and support people with a diverse range of disabilities.

We value and support all people, regardless of political affiliation, religious beliefs, sexual orientation, nationality, race or ethnicity.

We will continue to work collectively with students, faculty, staff, alumni and community partners to aspire towards a just and peaceful world.

We encourage all of you to reach out to departments and individuals, or others you may know, who can help you navigate your concerns and cope with stress.
